| Benchmark | Description | Msg/sec (Msg/hour) | With DLR | Open session |
|-----------|---|------------------------------------|-------------|-----------------|
| A | MT push without delivery reports, and without sessions (e.g. alert without DLR) | 100 (360,000) | No | No |
| B | MT push with delivery reports, and with sessions (e.g. alert) | 80 (288,000) | Yes | No |
| C | MO + MT handling with delivery reports with sessions (static response) simulating an interactive medium capacity game | 20 MO + 20 MT (72,000 + 72,000) | Yes | Yes |

Notes:

- The numbers provided are estimation based on benchmarks performed with non-similar configurations.
- Increasing the number of application servers or their strength (number of CPUs, and/or amount of memory) will increase the capacity accordingly.
- Increasing the strength (number of CPUs, and/or amount of memory) of the database will increase the capacity accordingly.
- In order for m-wise to demonstrate the above benchmarks to iTouch, iTouch gateway must be able to generate (MOs) or handle (MTs) at the above rates.
- M-wise cannot provide the exact metrics for the scaling up that will result from adding additional application servers, or increasing the performance of the database unless it benchmarks the exact

¹ The MOMA platform to be provided by m-wise for iTouch consists of (among other hardware and software items) three application servers (1 x Pentium 1.3Ghz), and one database machine (2 x Xeon Pentium IV).

SMSC connectivity will be implemented using iTouch SMSC gateway, via m-wise SMSCI level API.

configuration. But from m-Wise's experience, it will be reasonable to assume that adding an additional application server (to the existing three) will add at least 20% increase in the performance.

In the current configuration as per schedule 1, iTouch has 1 API server, which supports at least incoming 20 MO and 20 MT outgoing transactions per second (Web, WAP & IVR interface through the API) or 40 MT per second. Should iTouch need to increase this capacity, an additional API Server can be added which will add at least 30% to the performance guaranteed above.

Upon such consent being granted by iTouch m-Wise will not be relieved from any of its obligations as set out herein. In this context, and without limiting iTouch's rights reasonably to withhold its consent, it shall be reasonable for iTouch to withhold its consent if it believes that the proposed assignee or sub-contractor could not or will not or may not fully perform m-Wise's obligations under this Agreement or may not act in iTouch's best interest which for the avoidance of doubt shall include a competitor of the iTouch Group.

4.2 Spare parts

The entire MOMA is designed and implemented as a totally redundant system. All MOMA elements are COTS (Off-the shelf) equipment that enables a very short lead-time. As such, each system element that could function as a “single point of failure” is duplicated. The practical usage of this design serves also as a “Spare part warehouse” enabling m-Wise to replace any faulty system element with a new one at a very short period of time, according to the “Response time and time to fix” table below. M-Wise has an also back-to-back service agreement with major equipment manufacturers, which enable a prompt recovery to initial functionality state.

4.3 Problem severity Levels

The system is monitored in the following levels:

1. Application
2. Software
3. Hardware (DB, IVR, communication equipment etc.)

Each level generates an alarm in case of problems.

The following priority levels table presents the resolution of problems once established

Fig 2

| Level | Heading | Description |
|-------|------------------|---|
| 1 | Critical Problem | a defect or problem (i) that results in a complete System failure, or (ii) that creates a disturbance in the System's functionality resulting in a capacity decrease of more than 5%, or (iii) a billing/charging function disturbance – stops working or is seriously affected, or (iv) System restarts and/or resets resulting in loss of any subscriber data. A Critical Problem that has been circumvented or avoided on a temporary basis will be considered a major problem. |
| 2 | Major Problem | a defect or problem that (i) creates a disturbance in the System's functionality resulting in a capacity decrease of less than 5%, or (ii) severely impairs system administration or major maintenance functions, (ii) results in a significant increase in complaints from end-users (iii) results in intermittent failure of subscribers' services, or (iv) causes System restarts and/or resets resulting in loss of some subscriber function or service more than once per day. |
| 3 | Minor Problem | a defect or problem that is not a Critical Problem or a Major Problem. |

4.4 Response time and time to fix

This section cover the committed time periods that may elapse between a reported or discovered malfunction and alerting of this to iTouch Customer care center according to the process specified in paragraph 2.2. It also states the committed elapsed time until a malfunction is fixed or a workaround is provided (for “Low” severity malfunctions). (Fix time)

The maximum time for restoring the service is determined according to the problem severity as set out in the table.

Fig 3.

| Level | Heading | Alert time | Fix time |
|-------|----------|----------------|------------------------------|
| 1 | Critical | 30 minutes | 95% of cases within 4 hours |
| 2 | Major | 90 minutes | 95% of cases within 8 hours |
| 3 | Minor | 4 hours or NBD | 90% of cases within 24 hours |

SCHEDULE 11PUBLICITY*iTouch licenses m-Wise MOMA Gateway for multinational consumer mobile services

DRAFT: Please note that iTouch has redrafted this. Please note that m-Wise edits are made using the Track Changes feature.

LONDON, UK – October xx, 2002: m-Wise today announced that it has been selected by iTouch plc, the London-listed (LSE: ITU) Wireless Application Service Provider, to supply the m-Wise MOMA Gateway as the main technology platform for iTouch's consumer mobile services.

iTouch, which was recently rated as the best UK provider of wireless applications by Mobile Metrix, has licensed the m-Wise MOMA Gateway to be installed at iTouch premises and managed by its Technology Group.

MOMA will manage and bill iTouch multi-language consumer services for its operations in Europe, Asia and Africa. This includes integration and support of MMS, SMS, IVR, WAP and J2ME consumer services developed by iTouch, its partners and m-Wise, which will integrate into MOMA via its proprietary API.

This arrangement follows iTouch's use of MOMA as a hosted solution earlier this year. Earlier cooperation included the launch of World Cup services and Spider-Man applications, as well as pre-paid products sold through iTouch's retail partner programme.

iTouch plc CIO Jem Eskenazi stated: "MOMA has proven to be robust, flexible and valuable for both our commercial and technical needs. The installed solution will enhance our ability to launch consumer applications, integrate third party content and ensure the highest level of technical and customer service."

m-Wise co-founder Shay Ben-Asulin said: "Our carrier-grade mobile middleware solution appeals to operators and large-scale WASPs, like iTouch, that require a focus point through which to develop, bill and support services for the type of large scale audiences with which iTouch deals. We are delighted to expand our partnership with iTouch, which to date has been fruitful for both parties."

Now encompassing over 300 applications and content services launched on more than 25 mobile networks Europe and Asia, the MOMA Gateway is critical middleware for mobile operators, major WASPs and large global brands. MOMA increases data traffic and premium revenues, and significantly minimises capital, commercial, training and technical requirements for managing value-added mobile services.
